of the Advanced Units of Measure feature, and the ability to create invoices for back-ordered items.

The Products Panel in AdvancePro allows users to access all product related tasks from a single screen including the ability to add a new product manage inventory, edit existing products, and view global pricing.

AdvancePro includes excellent product tracking capability, with the ability to track product manufacturing and expiration dates. Users can also assign lot or serial numbers to any product upon receipt, and can easily track an unlimited amount of lot or serial numbers. The warehouse management module allows users to manage inventory in multiple warehouses as well as transfer stock between locations. Users can set inventory levels and receive notification when stock is low, and stock can be reserved for expected orders.

AdvancePro's add-on Wireless Warehouse – AP Mobile module syncs with the core application, providing users with the ability to make live inventory adjustments, scan products coming into and leaving the warehouse, and scan a product barcode to view additional details on that product. Also available is the AP Labels module, AdvancePro includes kitting and offers a Manufacturing module that includes Make to Order capability, multi-level bills of materials, batch only manufacturing, and variable bills of materials. Product assembly is also supported in AdvancePro, including the ability to serialize completed assembly items. Features found in the Pricing/Discount Management module include the ability to assign customers to a particular group, and then assign special pricing by group. Users can also create customer-specific pricing, and assign pricing by product category. Volume discounts are available for those purchasing large quantities of products, and customer-specific promotions and special pricing levels can be assigned.

AdvancePro currently supports multiple inventory costing methods including FIFO, LIFO, Moving Average Costing, and Last Primary Vendor Bill Costing, which assumes that inventory purchased will have the same cost as the most recent vendor bill.

The Reports/Business Intelligence feature in AdvancePro offers excellent reporting options, with inventory management reports such as Advanced net Movement report, Advanced Customer Order report, Net Movement report, Purchase reports, Sales by Vendor, Sales by Customer, and an Unsold Product report. All AdvancePro reports can be exported to Microsoft Excel for further customization, with the option to export reports as an RTG file or save as a PDF.

AdvancePro offers seamless integration with QuickBooks applications, with all data synching automatically. AdvancePro is a good choice for e-commerce retailers, integrating with both UPS and FedEx, as well as Amazon, Wee, Shopify, eBay, and Magento. Additional modules such as AP Labels, AP Mobile, and Multiple Companies are also offered by AdvancePro and designed to integrate with the core application.

The AdvancePro knowledge base offers a variety of how-to guides, installation instructions, and information on QuickBooks integration, modules, and reports. APT
