What's the one piece of technology that MOST helps you get through your normal workday?

"Microsoft Outlook is the primary application I am in throughout the day. Organizing appointments and the related correspondence is an important part of how I stay on top of the ongoing projects and communications."

What will be the biggest change over the next five years in the ways tax and accounting firms operate?

"I believe the industry is really looking for a deeply integrated suite of applications that will tie in all the processes a firm requires to operate all facets of their business. This system must include resource and content management capabilities. These integrated applications will assist firms in developing the type of environment that young, dynamic professionals will want to work in. They must also allow increased flexibility in accessing information anywhere, anytime. As noted in the CCH Young Accounting Professionals Survey, the up-and-coming workforce expects an environment that supports work-life balance and uses technology as an accelerator in their growth and productivity."

What Rhett's peers had to say about him:

Rhett has built a dynamic team of consultants on the most critical, cutting-edge applications on the market today. He looks forward every day to developing and
