HUNTSVILLE, AL RESTON, VA — Beason & Nalley, Inc., a rapidly-growing certified public accounting and consulting firm headquartered in Huntsville, Alabama since 1963, has announced that it has successfully completed its recent peer review with no letter comments.

The American Institute of CPAs (AICPA) requires all certified public accounting firms to undergo a thorough review of their attest services and systems of quality control by another registered firm. The peer review was conducted through the review of a sample of attest Beason & Nalley's engagements, as well as an examination of its controls to ascertain that Beason & Nalley is in compliance with industry standards.

"Our audit department is committed to excellence in every facet of performing attest services. We are very proud of our team and their continued track record in receiving the highest marks a firm can receive with respect to quality control," said Scott Butler, Audit Director.

The Firm provides a vast array of specialized tax, audit, consulting, and accounting services. One of the largest public accounting firms in Alabama, Beason & Nalley serves clients in the government contracting, non-profit, state and local government, technology, real estate, and medical sectors. The firm recently expanded its presence into Northern Virginia in April, 2008 in order to better serve their government contractor customers.
