portal products, Thomson Reuters continues to forge a path down the paperless trail. In recent months we've seen many changes, and they all point to creating a true paperless tax process.

Consider what Thomson is doing to make this happen:

- Collapsed multiple portal logins to a single login screen.
- Developed a more robust tool in UltraTax CS for monitoring the status of e-filed client returns.
- Tightened integration between UltraTax CS and NetClient portals.
- Added the ability to place the client's invoice in the portal.

It all points toward a completely paperless tax workflow. And that is exactly what accountants need.
