checking news stories, file sharing, collaboration and accessing web-based programs. And watching videos on YouTube, of course. Which browser do you prefer?

On my PCs, I have all three of the major browsers designed for Windows (Internet Explorer, Firefox and Chrome). I've also had the PC version of Safari in the past.

Personally- I use Firefox as the default, but mostly just because I've gotten accustomed to it. That isn't to say I believe it is necessarily better than the other two.

PC World recently did a comparison of these three browsers (not sure why they left out Safari), and found similarities between them, but when it came to a few key factors, including speed and handling graphics, there was a winner.

Which one? Check out PC World for the scoop.
