The FBI has arrested the controller of Collin Street Bakery for mail fraud, three weeks after the Corsicana, Texas, fruitcake giant filed a lawsuit alleging that he had embezzled more than $16.6 million since January 2005 until he was fired this June, the U.S. attorney's office in Dallas said Tuesday.

According to a news release, Sandy Jenkins spent the money on 43 luxury cars, a vacation home in Santa Fe, N.M., private plane travel, and a $3 million watch and jewelry collection. His spending at Neiman Marcus department store alone topped $1 million, according to an affidavit filed by FBI agent Christine L. Edson.

Jenkins, 64, was arrested Monday after a July 24 FBI raid on his home in Corsicana, 80 miles southeast of Fort Worth. The Corsicana Daily Sun reported at the time that a Mercedes and a Lexus were towed off in the raid.

According to Edson's affidavit, the fraud was uncovered by accounting clerk Semetric Walker, who refused to believe Jenkins' explanation that a $20,000 check was written to cover postage.

Walker brought her suspicions to high-level executives in the family-owned bakery after finding that a number of postage-related checks were actually paid into accounts unconnected to the bakery's business.

The affidavit alleged that the controller had gone into the bakery's computerized
