better visibility into accounts payable data and added control over approvals

Nov. 18, 2013

Payroll and human resources provider ADP has added new features to the electronic invoicing functions in its its ADP Procure-to-Pay Solutions (P2P) platform, which are geared toward boosting productivity for midsized and large businesses. The enhancements include the extension of existing invoice collaboration tools, improved visibility and access to accounts payable data, more advanced coding capabilities and a mobile application. Businesses can now improve their accounts payable process and process invoices more efficiently than ever before by taking advantage of these capabilities to reduce the need for manual methods and streamline overall workflow.

The latest enhancements include to ADP's P2P electronic invoicing solution include:

Advanced messaging for invoice collaboration. By opening the lines of communication between multiple teams but managing invoices within a single system, businesses are in a better position to streamline supplier communications, reduce internal handoffs and ensure timely resolution of invoice status inquiries, questions and disputes. Businesses can also help improve consistency by distributing messages to multiple vendors simultaneously.

Improved visibility into accounts payable data. Businesses now have more comprehensive access to their accounts payable data and transaction-level information, and can access it quickly and easily through ADP's system.

Custom queries and filters, scheduled reports and flexible options to share data via email, system alerts or the P2P dashboard improve visibility and help allow for more strategic decision-making around processes and supplier relationships.

More advanced coding. Enhancements to ADP's rule-based coding engine now improved productivity.

"We consistently hear from our customers that they want more automation, more visibility and more control. These enhancements are designed to give our customers what they need to run as efficiently as possible," said Leon Busch, Vice President and General Manager of ADP Procure-to-Pay Solutions. "ADP is a leader in providing innovative solutions that help businesses of all sizes be more strategic and drive their businesses forward. The latest release of our P2P solution continues this tradition and helps ensure we can position our clients to spend less time on invoice management and more time on building their business."

The ADP Procure-to-Pay Solutions platform is transforming the way organizations manage their accounts payable process. ADP delivers comprehensive functionality – PO management, electronic invoicing, supplier enablement, scan and capture services, automated workflow and payments automation – to clients looking to reduce errors and their use of paper, while increasing efficiency and overall spend visibility.
