Latcham Award for Distinguished Service in State and Local Taxation. Frankel is senior counsel with Morrison and Foerster's State + Local Tax Group and former Chairman of Bloomberg BNA's State and Local Tax Advisory Board.

Dec. 09, 2013

Bloomberg BNA (BBNA) has named that Paul Frankel as the recipient of the 2013 Franklin C. Latcham Award for Distinguished Service in State and Local Taxation. Frankel is senior counsel with Morrison and Foerster's State + Local Tax Group and former Chairman of Bloomberg BNA's State and Local Tax Advisory Board. BBNA is a global provider of tax, accounting and legal research and technology solutions.

The Latcham Award is named for Franklin C. Latcham, the first Chairman of Bloomberg BNA's State and Local Tax Advisory Board and founder of the State Tax Portfolio Series. The Award has been given to a distinguished state tax practitioner since 1996 and will be presented to Paul at a ceremony on December 12 in New York.

“It is hard to imagine anyone more deserving of the Latcham Award,” said George Farrah, Executive Editor of Bloomberg BNA's Tax & Accounting publications. “Paul is truly a legend in the area of state and local taxation, providing leadership and guidance throughout his career and across a wide range of topics.”

He has written numerous articles for Bloomberg BNA's state tax publications and has served as Chairman of the State Tax Advisory Board for over a decade. As Chairman, Paul helped guide the evolution of Bloomberg BNA's state tax products from a Portfolio series to a complete resource for state tax research needs, culminating in the release of the expanded Premier State Tax Library, new practice tools and other state tax resources earlier this year.

Paul is widely regarded as a pioneer in the field of multistate taxation. “Paul's recommended by Best Lawyers In America 2014, Euromoney's Expert Guides and Super Lawyers 2009.

“Paul has long been and continues to be at the top of our profession – forcefully, respectfully and successfully advocating for the positions of his clients in state tax disputes across the country, winning and settling hundreds of cases in virtually every state,” said Hollis L. Hyans, a partner with Morrison & Foerster LLP in New York. “He does it with great style and fun, clearly enjoying his clients and the success he brings to their matters. I am honored to have been his partner for nearly 20 years, and to have learned from him not only about state tax issues but many important life lessons. No one deserves this recognition more than Paul, and I wish him continued success.”

Paul has served as National Chairman of Tax Executive Institute's (TEI) State and Local Steering Committee, Chairman of the Council on State Taxation (COST) Lawyer's Coordinating Subcommittee and Chairman of the National Foreign Trade Council's Worldwide Unitary Task Force. He is currently a member of the New York City Tax Appeals Tribunal Advisory Committee, the NYU Institute's State and Local Advisory Board, and other state and local tax advisory boards. He is also co-chair of the NYU State Tax Forum. Earlier in his career, Mr. Frankel also served as Senior Tax Counsel at W.R. Grace & Co. and a senior trial attorney for the IRS Regional Counsel's Office.

Earlier recipients of the Latcham Award include Marilyn A. Wethekam, a partner with Horwood Marcus & Berk Chtd. in Chicago; University of Connecticut Professor of Law Richard D. Pomp; Judge Bill Thompson, the Alabama Department of Revenue's chief administrative law judge; Prentiss Willson, former national director of Ernst & Young's State and Local Tax Practice and Procedure; Walter Hellerstein, professor of law at the University of Georgia Law School; James Buresh, former
