The developer of Tallie, a cloud-based expense management and reporting solution, has integrated the system Intacct, an online financial management and accounting program for businesses. The integrated solution will be available to customer via the Intacct Marketplace, a robust ecosystem of cloud applications that are pre-integrated with the Intacct financial management system.

Tallie is demonstrating the integration at Intacct Advantage 2014, the Intacct customer and partner conference, taking place November 9-13 in Orlando.

"Intacct is a top choice for mid-sized businesses looking at cloud financial applications, and Intacct offers a fantastic platform for developers," said Chris Farrell, Tallie's CEO. "The integration between Tallie and Intacct provides a complete expense report automation workflow that will benefit both finance teams and employees they support."

Key features of this integrated solution include the seamless support of all Intacct dimensions and multiple-entities, as well as immediate, bi-directional synchronization of all dimensional data with the Intacct SmartEvents functionality.

"Tallie is committed to providing our joint customers with an automated expense management process that saves businesses significant time and money," said Scott Lumish, VP Business Development at Intacct. "Tallie's ability to deliver and update expense data seamlessly to Intacct gives businesses another powerful tool to help them manage their business more efficiently."

The Industry-Leading Expense Management Solution

Since its launch, Tallie has received widespread endorsement and awards from the alerts to employees, managers and approvers. Customized, multi-tiered approval chains. Approve expense reports online or directly from email.

"Since day one, Tallie made a huge, positive impact on our expense management and accounting productivity. Our team now spends 50% less time managing this area of our business," said Jilbert Washten, CFO of Ascentis and Intacct customer. "Combined with their top quality customer support and product training, Tallie truly is the best expense management solution for any business."
