“As businesses strive to adopt digital business models, they are seeking trusted technology that enables them to operate with more agility, to deliver more effective results and to simplify their operations,” said Rob Enslin, member of the Executive Board of SAP SE and President of Cloud Business Group, SAP. “With SAP Leonardo, we are delivering industry-specific innovation capabilities and services that integrate with core business applications, so that customers can build a seamless bridge between operating and innovating. Working closely with Deloitte Consulting, we expect to develop truly innovative digital solutions.”

The first solutions planned to launch under the new co-innovation initiative will provide clients with “Lights Out Finance” and “Live Factory” capabilities. With Lights Out Finance, clients might deploy cognitive and robotic extensions to help automate financial processes, including shared services. Live Factory will be aimed at helping organizations connect the shop floor through SAP Leonardo, enabling predictive decision-making to help improve throughput and reduce bottlenecks.

“These solutions are just the beginning. Through this collaboration, we’re building a foundation—a set of co-innovation practices and processes—that will help position Deloitte Consulting to continuously develop and refine digital solutions for clients across industries,” said Jim Moffatt, Deloitte Managing Partner, Global Consulting. “By working together to invent digital solutions that address tomorrow’s finance and supply chain needs, SAP will gain Deloitte Consulting’s in-depth business process knowledge and understanding of how organizations will use technologies in the future. In turn, we are gaining from SAP deeper insights into the art of the possible with the power of SAP Leonardo and upcoming enhancements to SAP S/4HANA.”

What’s next? Additional offerings under the umbrellas of “Finance Innovation” and “Supply Chain Innovation” are planned for design and release in the future. Deloitte
