developed exclusively for the accounting profession to simplify the overall client experience. The system was developed to connect firms and clients through an advanced online platform that captures engagement and interaction at every level and across devices — so no task or communication falls through the cracks. The business has offices in Pleasanton, California, and Indianapolis.

“My tactic in business has always been to surround myself with brilliant people, said LISCIO CEO Darren Root, CPA. “I’ve known Chris for several years and have witnessed first hand his exceptional talent for developing and bringing world-class technology to market. So, when we started talking about LISCIO, I knew I wanted him on the team.”

Farrell lives in the San Francisco Bay Area and is a graduate of the UCLA Anderson School of Business.
