adjustments can also be imported from another application if desired.

Officewise is designed to track regular inventory movement and balances but currently does not include the ability to scan barcodes or create and print custom barcodes for products. The product also supports various, custom units of measure, so users can track a variety of item types. Users can easily attach both files and images to a product, purchase order, or sales order record, if desired. Officewise does not support multiple pricing levels, but users can easily override current pricing when processing a sales order in the application. This same process can be used when volume pricing is desired for a larger order.

Officewise offers more than 50 system reports, with six inventory specific reports available, including Inventory Valuation Summary, Inventory by Location, Inventory Margin Summary, and Inventory Transaction Detail. Related reports include Order Detail, Transaction Detail, Sales Orders by Customer and Sales Orders by Date. All reports created in Officewise can be exported as a CSV file for further customization, or saved as a PDF.

A complete online financial system, Officewise offers complete integration with the Accounting, Purchasing, and Inventory modules. The product does not offer integration with shopping carts or e-commerce platforms at this time.

Users can access Help functionality from anywhere in Officewise by simply clicking on the question mark in the right corner of the screen. The Officewise Help Center offers users access to a variety of help tools and resources including a User Guide, Tips, and FAQ's. Product support can also be accessed by submitting a request through the Help Center or by calling a toll-free support number.
