Software

Practitioners, companies of all sizes, schools, banks and other users are indeed fortunate to have such a wealth of strong software vendors from which to choose. As we have seen, not all programs support every form or sub-type. Of course, not every user has a need to generate every form or sub-type. Users who seek direct import support for one particular accounting program will have different needs from those who need support for many accounting programs. Users are doubly fortunate that there is strong support, found in accompanying program utilities and methodology, for importing client-specific and user-specific data. Re-keying data is truly an activity whose time has passed. All vendors have trial versions of their programs and are knowledgeable in supporting the issues that relate to the production of Form W-2 and 1099. Bon appétit!
