What peers, clients and friends say about Andrew:

Andrew has applied the expertise he gained in document management for education and other industries to advance tax and accounting processes within firms. He has developed unique concepts to standardize and simplify processes for less paper within accounting firms. He understands the needs of accounting professionals and explains the need for good records management standards.

What technology or business process does Andrew see affecting the tax and accounting profession in the next five years?

“Of course it would have to be the evolution of paperless methods and technologies geared toward increasing productivity and profitability for public accountants.”
