What peers, clients and friends say about Chris:

Chris is loyal, dependable, intelligent, confident and driven. He actively promotes the CITP designation and the role of an IT trained CPA in the marketplace. He is active within the profession and has spent his entire career addressing business information technology needs and developing solutions for those needs, for a wide variety of business organizations. His past experience includes serving as Director of Consulting Services for a local CPA firm, working for a Big 6 accounting firm and employment with IBM Corporation.

What technology or business process does Chris see affecting the tax and accounting profession in the next five years?

“Fundamental change in the delivery of accounting services due to technology changes. This will change the work CPAs do today into something new. Some people adapt to change faster than others. The virtual office will be even more important.”
