What peers, clients and friends say about Myra:

Myra is a true accounting professional who loves accounting and loves her job. She enjoys the challenges of interpreting and identifying accounting issues particularly for the high-tech industry. Working for fast-growing Silicon Valley company NetSuite offers her plenty of those challenges, and Myra has enjoyed actively participating in the development of NetSuite, an accounting + CRM software-as-a-service provider, which NetSuite employees truly believe is the future of accounting technology. She prides herself in working a successful full-time job while having three boys under the age of four.

What technology or business process does Myra see affecting the tax and accounting profession in the next five years?

“The power of online applications will have a great impact to the accounting profession, enabling them to be more mobile, responsive, productive and profitable.”
