What peers, clients and friends say about Scott:

Scott works hard to maintain good relationships with clients and coworkers. Scott has been an outstanding asset in assisting in the implementation of his firm's not-for-profit and governmental accounting activities, and is an exceptional team player and team leader whom clients and coworkers respect.

What technology or business process does Scott see affecting the tax and accounting profession in the next five years?

"Accounting software is constantly improving and pushing what technology allows. In the next five years, I think you will see a lot more web access and functionality to include non-typical accounting software user access to information and even data entry for purchase requisitions."
