What's the one piece of technology that MOST helps you get through your normal workday?

“Without question, the Internet and e-mail are now part of my core being. The Internet opens the world up and allows for endless business opportunities. The mainstream usage of social networking, blogs and online video is only expanding this reach. I find this rapid expansion exciting, and I cannot wait to see what the next generation will develop to help augment the world's massive communication network.”

What will be the biggest change over the next five years in the ways tax and accounting firms operate?

“CPA firms have long been trusted authorities to their clients. As a software firm, we see their reach expanding at substantial rates. From accounting to technology, the average accountant is providing more and more services and
