MADISON, CT, July 7, 2009—Build Your Firm, a full-service practice development and coaching business for accountants, announced today the launch of their new directory-based website AccountingMatch.com. The website is a content-based website for small business owners seeking information on accounting, tax, and small business management issues. The beta version of the website is currently live for the Chicago market.

“We designed the AccountingMatch.com website to become a valuable resource for small business owners struggling with accounting, tax, and business management issues,” stated Hugh Duffy, Chief Marketing Officer for Build Your Firm. “In researching the marketplace, we learned that small business owners wanted something more than just a directory of accounting firms that was nothing more than an electronic telephone book. We want to ensure that visitors to AccountingMatch.com have the relevant information they need in one location, including helpful articles, financial tools, and a directory of accounting professionals that we are familiar with.”

AccountingMatch.com provides a rotating library of current information for the end user, including articles on such topics as tax break tips and estate planning. The site also provides financial tools such as tax due date reminders, track your refund, and retirement planning calculators, and an easy Getting Started menu that guides users on how to select, meet, and work with an accountant.

“We designed the site to be as intuitive as possible,” stated Duffy. “The robust Quick Search feature allows users to submit queries to quickly locate accounting firms in their area that meet their specific business needs.”

The AccountingMatch system is set up so that accounting professionals can provide
