

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

Isaac M. O'Bannon • Jan. 03, 2012

It may still seem like a recession to many individuals, but economists say we're technically in a recovery now, and many accounting professionals across the nation are starting to see an easing of credit and other positive signs of improved financial strength.

In a recent poll conducted by the Oklahoma Society of CPAs (www.oscpa.com) and reported in the Tulsa World, more than half of the professionals in that state expect the economy to be stronger over the coming year. However optimistic this may sound, however, the number of optimists in the poll is down to 54.7% this year, from

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

CPA Practice Advisor is registered with the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy (NASBA) as a sponsor of continuing professional education on the National Registry of CPE Sponsors.

© 2024 Firmworks, LLC. All rights reserved