

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us industry.

Taija Sparkman • May. 23, 2012

Transzap, Inc., the parent company of Oildex and provider of SaaS solutions for the oil and natural gas industry, recently appointed Richard Slack as the company's new President and CEO. In his new role, Slack will have responsibility over Transzap's strategic direction, operations and growth.

"I am honored to join Transzap as President and CEO during this exciting time," Slack said. "Transzap has long been a leader and innovator in the energy industry. I am proud to help build on that tradition by leveraging our strong team of people who are dedicated to developing and delivering high quality services to an expanding customer base."

Slack has more than 30 years of experience in the oil and gas industry and has held numerous strategic roles at the senior level. He has worked for many companies in the energy industry such as Halliburton/Landmark Graphics, Wellpoint Systems, GeoGraphix, Bolo Systems, and CogniSeis Development.

"The appointment of Richard Slack to CEO will enhance and expand Transzap's relationships and opportunities across our product suite," said Sean Ebert, Transzap Chairman and Altira Group Principal. "Richard's deep domain experience within oil and gas, software, and hydrocarbon accounting, combined with his operational and entrepreneurial background, provides Transzap with a platform for even greater success in the future."

Firm Management

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us