

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

By Hurricane Sandy

In a letter to the Internal Revenue Service, the American Institute of CPAs has asked the IRS to consider extending relief from filing deadlines for those impacted by Hurricane Sandy.

Taija Sparkman • Nov. 02, 2012

In a letter to the Internal Revenue Service, the American Institute of CPAs has asked the IRS to consider extending relief from filing deadlines for those impacted by Hurricane Sandy.

As noted in the letter written by Jeffrey Porter, CPA, Chair of the AICPA's Tax Executive Committee, the IRS plans to grant additional filing and payment relief as the Federal Emergency Management Agency issues qualifying disaster declarations.

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

Porter believes that the IRS should at least consider the location of taxpayers, their preparers and records when making decisions about granting relief. Porter also adds that many taxpayers will need relief, including those organizations that are involved in relief efforts associated with Hurricane Sandy.

“If any of those locations fall within the areas impacted by Hurricane Sandy, we request that the relief be extended to those items,” wrote Porter.

Taxes

CPA Practice Advisor is registered with the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy (NASBA) as a sponsor of continuing professional education on the National Registry of CPE Sponsors.

© 2024 Firmworks, LLC. All rights reserved