Bill.com founder and CEO. "As a long-time top performing app on the Intuit App Center, we are excited to make it even easier for small businesses to integrate our leading solutions together, letting business owners focus their minds on more important matters."

This new integration provides QuickBooks customers with a branded payment portal. Through their portal, users and their customers can autopay bills using Bill.com's ePayment or credit card options, view invoice history, share documents and send messages to each other. Users can also charge clients directly from their bank accounts and sync all information automatically to QuickBooks.

"This integration is all about letting our joint customers get organized, get paid and get ahead. Bill.com offers the only complete end-to-end solution for managing the payables and receivables processes and creates a more collaborative environment than accounting software on its own" said Lacerte. "Many people who typically wouldn't be involved in the accounting process get involved in the bill payment and invoicing processes. These include team members who work directly with customers and vendors as well as the customers and vendors themselves."

Bill.com provides a completely web-based solution for accounting professionals and business to optimize cash flow. Through Bill.com's platform, users have access to online bill payment, e-invoicing, document management and automated workflow in one central location. The company offers integration with businesses' accounting software and a comprehensive view of their cash forecast. Bill.com also recently integrated its cash flow-centric banking platform for banks and their SMB customers.

"Our users wanted a more seamless integration that didn't require any installation in QuickBooks systems and automatically syncs," added Lacerte. "We're happy to deliver that today."
