

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

Tax Foundation.

Feb. 12, 2013

If you buy something in Oklahoma, the government is going to take a bigger bite than just about anywhere else in the nation, according to a Monday report from the Tax Foundation.

The average combined state and local sales tax rate in Oklahoma is the fifth highest in the nation. Only Tennessee, Arizona, Louisiana and Washington have higher combined rates.

The average combined rate in the state is 8.67 percent. Tennessee had the highest combined rate, 9.44 percent.

In the city of Tulsa within Tulsa County, the current combined sales tax rate is 8.517 percent.

“While graduated income tax rates and brackets are complex and confusing to many taxpayers, the sales tax is easier to understand: People can reach into their pocket and see the rate printed on a receipt,” said Tax Foundation economist Scott Drenkard. “Less known, however, are the local sales taxes collected in 37 states.

“These rates can be substantial, so a state with a moderate statewide sales tax rate could actually have a very high combined state-local rate compared to other states.”

Oklahoma’s 4.5 percent state sales tax is lower than that of any of the surrounding states. Texas, which has no state income tax, has a 6.25 percent state sales tax.

But the relatively high local sales tax rates in Oklahoma — averaging 4.17 percent — push the state into the top combined levels. Only four states — Louisiana, Colorado, New York and Alabama — have higher average local sales tax rates than Oklahoma.

Five states do not have a statewide sales tax: Alaska, Delaware, Montana, New

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us influence business location and investment decisions, sales taxes are something within policymakers' control that can have immediate impacts.”

A 2009 report from the Center for Budget and Policy Priorities shows that Oklahoma is one of the few states that applies its sales tax to groceries.

Thirty-one states and the District of Columbia exempt most food purchases for home consumption from the state sales tax. Seven states, including Arkansas, tax groceries at a lower rate than other retail sales.

Five states — Hawaii, Idaho, Kansas, Oklahoma and South Dakota — tax groceries fully but offer credits or rebates offsetting those costs.

In Oklahoma, people who live in the state the entire year and whose gross household income does not exceed $20,000 for individuals or $50,000 for people who claim a dependent, are over age 65 or have a substantial handicap to employment are eligible for a $40 refundable income tax credit. While state statute doesn't specify that the credit is linked to grocery sales taxes, that was the impetus of the legislation when it was put into law.

Two states — Alabama and Mississippi — fully tax food purchases without rebates, according to the 2009 report.

Most states that exempt groceries from state sales taxes also exempt them from local sales taxes.

Copyright 2013 – Tulsa World, Okla.

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us