April 16, 2013 – Doc.It and Network Management Group Inc (NMGI) have announced the creation of a strategic alliance between the two companies. Doc.It is a provider of a scalable full suite of document management products for accounting professionals.

NMGI provides services with an emphasis on computer networking, infrastructure management, business continuity, and technology services for small and midsize businesses and organizations.

The alliance is designed to assist Doc.It with the onboarding and professional installation services for new clients and to support Doc.It's expansion throughout North America. This alliance with NMGI, a well-respected service provider in the industry, is congruent with Doc.It's corporate strategy and strategic growth plans.

"NMGI has the experience and technical skills to help accounting firms properly configure and install the Doc.It system. Integrating with other installed applications and getting the firm ready to learn their new system is something our team can easily do," said Randy Johnston, President, NMGI.

Today's announcement builds on last week's announcement featuring Mike Sabbatis being appointed to Doc.It's executive board and directly aligns with Doc.It's corporate strategy of aligning with industry-leaders. "Our alliance with NMGI will provide both companies with growth opportunities in North America. My team and

I look forward to working with NMGI as we continue to execute our strategic
