BigTime Software, Inc., cloud-based time and billing software, recently released a time and billing app that allows small and mid-sized firms to access their time and billing data from their iOS mobile device.

“BigTime Mobile takes remote time management to a whole new level, putting pro-level time and expense tracking functionality in the palm of your hand,” said Brian Saunders, CEO and founder of BigTime. “When you look at the mobile T&B apps that are currently out there, this really is a game changer – the kind of mobile app the market’s been asking for.”

BigTime Mobile provides anytime, anywhere access to many of the features of BigTime’s desktop version. Users can submit timesheets by sending an email. The

The BigTime Mobile app is available for free through the iTunes App Store, for current subscribers of BigTime Express and BigTime IQ.

“Users want the ability to manage projects, have full access to staff/client contact information, and see data by the week, even month. And they want to do it in a way that’s organic to how they already interact with their smartphone,” said Saunders. “BigTime Mobile was built from the ground up to do all of that.”
