August 29, 2013 – Boomer Consulting, Inc. has announced the recipients of the inaugural Bridging the Gap Awards. The awards recognize both accounting firms and individual professionals who work in the accounting space that excel in aligning technology, firm management and talent development.

“These winners have done a fantastic job of leveraging thought leadership, peer networking and accountability to consistently improve,” said Jim Boomer, CIO of Boomer Consulting, Inc. “These recipients are leading the industry and truly bridging the gap.”

Jim Bourke, Partner-in-Charge of Firm Technology at WithumSmith+Brown, PC is the winner of the Bridging the Gap in Firm Management award. Jim is a long-time member of the Boomer Technology Circles and is dedicated to aligning business and technology strategy not only in his own firm but throughout the profession as well.

Steve Perkins, Chief Information Officer of Hogan Taylor LLP is the winner of the Bridging the Gap in Technology award. Since joining the Boomer Technology Circles in 2011, Steve has fully embraced the concept of aligning IT strategy with the overall vision of his firm. He is constantly on a quest for knowledge and new ideas to take back to his firm.

Jana Cinnamon, Training Director at Abdo Eick Meyers is the winner of the Bridging the Gap in Talent Development award. Jana has been instrumental in connecting vision firm by naming their first ever Managing Partner, building a reporting structure in their four offices and implementing their first ever performance management process.

“We are thrilled to recognize these firms and individuals that are setting the standard for the industry,” said Sandra Wiley, COO of Boomer Consulting, Inc. “These awards are a testament to their focus and hard work to improve themselves and their firms every day.”

The winners were chosen by a Boomer Consulting, Inc. selection committee along with the nominations provided by the members of the Boomer Technology Circles and Talent Development Advantage community.

These firms and individuals were honored at the 2013 Boomer Technology Circles Summit & Talent Development Advantage conference on August 19-20, 2013 in Kansas City, MO. The event brought together firm leaders, technology professionals and talent development leaders with a focus on bridging the gap between technology, firm management and talent development.
