The Tax & Accounting business of Thomson Reuters has introduced a new bi-directional integration between Accounting CS Payroll and the Time Rack time, attendance, and human resources solution.

The new integration allows users to automatically share data between Time Rack and Accounting CS Payroll in real time, eliminating the need for manual synchronization and data entry. The new functionality will help improve the accuracy of time data, new employees, pay rate changes and other information in both systems. It also creates new ways to automate the payroll process, including the ability to automatically create paychecks in Accounting CS Payroll using time clock data shared from Time Rack.

The new capabilities will enable users of Accounting CS Payroll and Time Rack to offer a more unified, more sophisticated human resources and payroll system. Users will be able to share information automatically, manage firm and client processes more efficiently, improve accuracy, and offer services that go beyond basic payroll compliance.

“I’m really pleased that our preferred partner relationship with Time Rack has enabled us to put the pieces of HR and payroll processing together into one integrated system. It wasn’t long ago that only the big service bureaus could offer this level of sophistication to their clients,” said Scott Fleszar, vice president of
