

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us stores open and $4,000 less in sales tax revenues collected by the county.

Mar. 26, 2014

The second month of legal recreational marijuana sales in Pueblo saw three more stores open and $4,000 less in sales tax revenues collected by the county.

Pueblo County Clerk and Recorder Gilbert “Bo” Ortiz said five Pueblo County stores delivered $28,724 in sales tax to the county late last week, representing roughly $820,000 in total sales for the month of February. With fewer days than January, the net result was actually a slight increase per day.

The county imposes a specific marijuana sales tax of 3.5 percent, which is collected

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

But based on what the county collected from its own tax, it stands to gain about $49,000 from the sale of recreational marijuana in February.

In January, the county collected $32,643 in county marijuana tax from just two stores and brought in a total of about $56,000 from all marijuana sales tax sources.

It may be that the novelty of legal weed has worn off a bit from its historic first month, but Ortiz said it will be difficult to make any real predictions or analysis until after the county has a full year under its belt.

“We really aren't expecting anything right now,” he said. “It's all new revenue and I think that's good enough for us.”

Copyright 2014 – The Pueblo Chieftain, Colo.

Income Tax • Legislation • Sales Tax

CPA Practice Advisor is registered with the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy (NASBA) as a sponsor of continuing professional education on the National Registry of CPE Sponsors.

© 2024 Firmworks, LLC. All rights reserved