May. 06, 2014

Thomson Reuters has released a new mobile solution to accompany its Wealth Management platform powered by BETA and Thomson ONE. The app, Thomson ONE Anywhere, allows users to access vital market and client information, and execute client trades on iPad and Android tablets.

“Our community of financial advisors, wealth managers and investors increasingly require continuous access to market information and account data,” said John Fennelly, managing director, Wealth Management at Thomson Reuters. “Delivering these capabilities to our customers is fundamental to our strategy of providing market monitoring, client data and trading capabilities on any device or operating system. Our launch of Thomson ONE Anywhere is a major step forward in the evolution of our platform and will be the first of many innovative mobile services delivered to our wealth management community.”

Thomson ONE Anywhere and Thomson Reuters Wealth Management platform are the only integrated front-to-back office mobile workflow solution available in today's marketplace. Thomson ONE Anywhere offers a wide array of features including access to real time market monitoring, advanced charting, Reuters News, and detailed client information with the ability to trade. Thomson ONE Anywhere is available via app.thomsonone.com – a dynamic mobile site that can be accessed using an iPad or Android tablet using existing Thomson ONE login credentials.

Thomson ONE Wealth Management is a powerful and intuitive platform designed to meet the end-to-end needs of wealth management firms. The solution's breadth of capabilities include access to the most robust market and news coverage available,
