CPA Practice Advisor

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

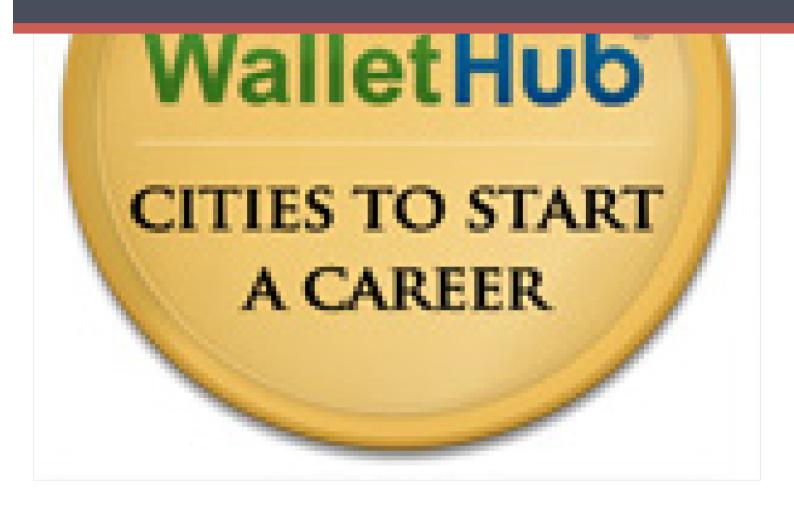

If you have any questions or need help you can email us recovery and Obamacare and many young people refusing to adjust expectations in the face of stiff competition, the effective unemployment rate for Americans ages 18 - 29 is currently 15.5 percent.

May. 21, 2014

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

While the struggles endured in recent years by America's youth pale in comparison to those suffered by young people in Spain and Greece – where unemployment rates in excess of 50 percent have spawned great social unrest – finding a job, let alone laying the foundation for a long and prosperous career, is far from simple in the current economic climate.

With many employers adopting a wait-and-see approach to both the economic recovery and Obamacare and many young people refusing to adjust expectations in the face of stiff competition, the effective unemployment rate for Americans ages 18 – 29 is currently 15.5 percent.

There is nevertheless reason for optimism among the graduating class of 2014 as well

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

While Americans in their twenties are now 40 percent less likely to move than they were 30 years ago, according to U.S. Census data, employment opportunities do vary significantly based on simple geography. So, in order to help recent college graduates find the best cradles for their burgeoning careers, financial website WalletHub analyzed the 150 largest cities in the U.S. to determine the relative strength of their job markets, the attractiveness of their social scenes, and various other factors that are important to new job market entrants.

Best Cities to Start a Career		Worst Cities to Start a Career
1.	Washington, DC	141. Riverside, CA
2.	Denver, CO	142. Cleveland, OH
3.	Irving, TX	143. Fayetteville, NC
4.	Seattle, WA	144. Columbus, GA
5.	Minneapolis, MN	145. Detroit, MI
6.	San Francisco, CA	146. Akron, OH
7.	Austin, TX	147. San Bernardino, CA
8.	Dallas, TX	148. Stockton, CA
9.	Charlotte, NC	149. Port St. Lucie, FL
10.	Houston, TX	150. Modesto, CA

The report ranked cities based on more than a dozen factors, including average

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

CPA Practice Advisor is registered with the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy (NASBA) as a sponsor of continuing professional education on the National Registry of CPE Sponsors.

© 2024 Firmworks, LLC. All rights reserved