

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us feedback from key stakeholders to shape the next version of the Uniform CPA Examination. The comment period opened today and runs through December 2.

Isaac M. O'Bannon • Sep. 02, 2014

The American Institute of CPAs has issued an Invitation to Comment, requesting feedback from key stakeholders to shape the next version of the Uniform CPA Examination. The comment period opened today and runs through December 2.

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

Michael A. Decker, AICPA vice president of examinations. “This valuable input will help influence the development of the Exam, and ultimately ensure that we’re continuing to protect the public interest, while setting the standard for testing accounting professionals.”

As part of the Practice Analysis, the AICPA’s research has found that the skills required of newly licensed CPAs are changing rapidly, underscoring the importance of ensuring the Exam continues to meet the needs of today’s ever-evolving business world.

The Invitation to Comment is accessible at aicpa.org/NextCPAExam, which includes instructions for submitting comments. Stakeholders are invited to comment on any or all of the proposals, all of which address AICPA’s initial research finding.

The Practice Analysis is sponsored by the AICPA’s Board of Examiners, in collaboration with the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy \(NASBA\).

Accounting • Firm Management

CPA Practice Advisor is registered with the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy (NASBA) as a sponsor of continuing professional education on the National Registry of CPE Sponsors.

© 2024 Firmworks, LLC. All rights reserved