

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us time? If you go on vacation, do you check your email or take business-related calls?

Jeff Davidson • Oct. 01, 2014

Have you taken a vacation this year? Will you end the year with unused vacation time? If you go on vacation, do you check your email or take business-related calls? You are not in the minority if you combine work and play. The latest statistics from Work-Life Balance Expert Jeff Davidson make it clear that leisure time plays second fiddle to work time in most of our lives.

Interestingly, his findings also show that those who do make an effort to get away from it all are likely to be healthier, and find that they experience less stress and are less likely to be depressed. So what are you waiting for? Take a break!

By the Numbers:

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

- The average American spends 2.8 hours per day watching TV, the most common leisure activity in the U.S. (BLS)
- 18 minutes – The average amount of leisure time spent per day on sports or exercise. (BLS)
- 19 Minutes – The Average amount of leisure time spent per day on socializing and communicating. (BLS)
- Men who take vacation time every year can lower their risk of heart disease by 20%. (SUNY)
- Women who take vacation more than once a year can dramatically lower levels of depression and increase marital satisfaction. (NIOCSH)
- 90 minutes of aerobic exercise per week improves a person's stress management. (HelpGuide.org)
- 40% of adults say that if they had more time, they would spend it with family. (DayRunner)
- 72% of workers believe their time management skills improve on days when they exercise. (Univ. of Bristol)
- More than 8 in 10 male Fortune 500 CEOs say they wish they had a job that allowed them more time to pursue interests outside of work. (Fortune)

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us