Accounting Degree Review, a website about accounting degrees and related topics, has released its 2014-2015 ranking of the 30 most affordable online accounting bachelor's degrees. Western Governors University's online program led the way with an annual tuition of only $5,780. The fifth ranked school, Western International University, was notable because it recently reduced its tuition by 51 percent. When most colleges and universities are raising or keeping their tuition the same, last year Western International University dropped their tuition from $14,900 to $7,600. The school's current tuition is $7,738.

All the schools in the ranking have a tuition cost lower than $12,300 and the average

Over 80 regionally accredited schools offering online bachelor's in accounting degrees were considered for the ranking by Accounting Degree Review. The site restricted their selections to schools with regional accreditation because it the highest form of institutional accreditation and offers advantages over other forms of accreditation.

Dee Barizo, Editor of Accounting Degree Review, was surprised to find so much variety within the top 30 schools. "There were schools with huge enrollments. There were small schools. There were public and private schools. There were nonprofit and not-for-profit schools. Every type of institution seemed to be represented," Barizo said. "This is great news for students who want an affordable education. Not only are there many schools to choose from with low tuition costs, but the schools are different from each other to meet the needs of different students."

Accounting Degree Review is an online resource dedicated to helping students that are interested in the accounting industry. The site publishes articles to help individuals succeed in the classroom and workplace. Along with school rankings, Accounting Degree Review covers related topics including accounting scholarships, internships, and jobs.
