consistently for years handled issues with great skill and care. They are certainly top-shelf in my opinion.”

“I’ve known the people at Doc.It for almost 10 years, and have seen how they constructively work with both new and existing firms to solve problems (both support issues and enhancement requests) over that time,” said Brian F. Tankersley, CPA.CITP, CGMA, Director, Strategic Relationships, K2 Enterprises. “The company’s exclusive focus on accounting and bookkeeping firms and the long-term stability of their key development and support team members makes it possible for them to have a level of industry expertise normally not present in a best-of-breed solution. Their experienced training and implementation team’s attention to detail with new customers before they start using the solution helps the tech support analysts focus on solving actual problems instead of fixing broken implementations and poor user training. When I make referrals, they are addressed quickly by the team, and I rarely have to follow up except to tell the firm’s IT director or IT partner that ‘You’re welcome, I was pleased to assist’ in response to them thanking me for making the referral to Doc.It.
