The accounting firm WeiserMazars LLP is expanding its business valuation advisory services practice, and has named new partner Bruce Richman to lead the practice section. He will be based out of the firm's Chicago office. The expanded practice will provide cross-industry expertise to all of the firm's clients, assisting them with decision-critical insight.

"We are enormously pleased to have Bruce join us to lead this important practice group," said WeiserMazars chairman and CEO Victor Wahba. "In today's global markets, effective valuation services are extremely important to our existing clients and the business community at large. We are proactive in building deep professional resources in this area as part of Project Century, our ongoing growth plan."

The Business Valuation Advisory Services Practice will initially be based out of our centers of excellence located in New York and Chicago. The objective of which is to enhance the firm's reputation in this area and extend these resources nationally over the course of the next few years in positioning WeiserMazars as a pre-eminent name in valuation services.

"Being able to handle complex valuation issues has a lot of synergy with WeiserMazars service offerings," said Bruce Richman. "I believe that moving this segment forward will touch every Practice group— from providing audit assistance to financial reporting, litigation services and the tax practice. I'm looking forward to building a strong practice with talented professionals in an environment noted for
