“The measures outlined in the ATA Package give the EU member states a single and coordinated approach to address tax avoidance,” said Jessica Silbering-Meyer, managing editor, international tax with a focus on BEPS, within the Tax & Accounting business of Thomson Reuters. “This report provides helpful guidance to keep businesses up-to-date on the latest developments for tax planning purposes.”

The report examines the new framework adopted by the European Commission to guide its member states' country-by-country reporting directives. It also outlines the anti-tax avoidance rules in six major fields, half of which have been specifically developed for the EU, while the rest have been adopted from the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development's (OECD) Base Erosion and Profit Shifting (BEPS) Action Plan. The report also highlights the EU's plan to address tax treaty abuse.
