Wolters Kluwer Tax and Accounting has launched a new user interface for CCH Accounting Research Manager (ARM), the complete research solution dedicated to financial reporting professionals. CCH ARM continues to be the comprehensive solution for expert guidance, efficient navigation, assurance tools, checklists and illustrative examples to ensure compliance for accounting and auditing.

The new CCH ARM interface quickly delivers needed information to maintain compliance in the face of constantly changing rules and regulations. This powerful research tool provides results with meaningful context and interpretive guidance linked to authoritative content – allowing professionals to get everything they need to know quickly.

Customers have offered early praise of the new CCH ARM interface while in beta testing. “As Vice President of Accounting, having a source with updated guidance is critical,” said Lisa M. Smith, Vice President, Accounting – CAP COM Federal Credit Union.

“I’ve really enjoyed the new CCH ARM interface – especially the easily accessible collaboration and one-click functionality.

- CCH ARM’s exclusive ARM Accounting Standards for easily locating guidance on US GAAP and IAS with direct links to relevant authoritative and interpretive literature by topic.
- CCH ARM’s exclusive interpretive content – featuring accounting, disclosure and audit best practices – including A Closer Look, a periodic, detailed analysis of current and relevant topics of interest such as leases, revenue recognition and more.

“The new enhancements we’ve made to CCH Accounting Research Manager demonstrate our dedication to putting the voice of the customer in the center of our solutions,” said Josh Braunstein, Executive Vice President and General Manager of Wolters Kluwer Tax and Accounting, Research & Learning. “We understand our customers’ research needs to boost productivity and get to the right answer faster, which is why we designed the new user interface to deliver a more intuitive and easy-to-use experience. We truly believe there is no other product on the market today that has the amount of customer focus and innovation that we bring to CCH Accounting Research Manager.”
