

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

Accounting Association (AAA) announced three awards for the Access to Audit Personnel Program, which connects academics with audit practitioners to participate in research ...

Apr. 25, 2018

CENTER FOR AUDIT QUALITY

Serving Investors, Public Company Auditors & the Markets

The Center for Audit Quality (CAQ) and the Auditing Section of the American Accounting Association (AAA) announced three awards for the Access to Audit Personnel Program, which connects academics with audit practitioners to participate in research projects.

“The CAQ values its strong relationship with the academic community, and we are delighted to coordinate the collection of data from audit personnel at our member firms again this year,” said CAQ Executive Director Cindy Fornelli. “Academic research is crucial as we work together to advance audit quality for the benefit of investors and our capital markets.”

Of the proposals received in 2018, the review committee selected the following

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

Auditing Behaviors (with Mark Peecher, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign; and Michael Ricci, University of Florida)

The Access to Audit Personnel Program will connect these researchers with approximately 430 auditors at CAQ Governing Board firms. Now in the program's sixth year, the CAQ and the AAA Auditing Section have supported 22 academic projects and provided access to nearly 5,000 audit practitioners.

"The Access to Audit Personnel Program is important for promoting judgment and decision-making research in accounting and auditing," said Rick Hatfield, President of the AAA Auditing Section and Fayard Endowed Chair in Accounting at the University of Alabama. "We are pleased to help researchers clear a major hurdle of academic research by connecting them with real-life auditors."

The Request for Proposals for the 2019 award cycle, which provides information on the evaluation criteria, is now available on the CAQ website; proposals are due by February 4, 2019.

About the CAQ

The Center for Audit Quality (CAQ) is an autonomous public policy organization dedicated to enhancing investor confidence and public trust in the global capital markets. The CAQ fosters high-quality performance by public company auditors; convenes and collaborates with other stakeholders to advance the discussion of critical issues that require action and intervention; and advocates policies and standards that promote public company auditors' objectivity, effectiveness, and responsiveness to dynamic market conditions. Based in Washington, DC, the CAQ is affiliated with the American Institute of CPAs. For more information, visit www.thecaq.org.

About the AAA

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

CPA Practice Advisor is registered with the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy (NASBA) as a sponsor of continuing professional education on the National Registry of CPE Sponsors.

© 2024 Firmworks, LLC. All rights reserved