Fort Worth and beyond, MWA has grown into one of the area's leading business advisory firms.

“Culturally and strategically, this is a fantastic fit and a lot of fun,” says Jerry McMillon, managing principal of office, CLA Dallas. “Our clients count on us to know them, uncover opportunities, and bring new ideas that can move them forward faster. That is the CLA Promise.”

As one of the nation's leading professional services firms, named to Accounting Today's top eight firms, CLA has retained the agility to serve clients of all sizes and in all locations, while at the same time bringing an unparalleled depth of capabilities, all in one place.

Allan D. Koltin, CEO of the Koltin Consulting Group, and advisor to both firms commented, “CLA is performing nationally at a level that is off the charts compared to their peers. The team's leadership, innovation, and endless passion for delivering a great client experience truly distinguish them in the markets they serve. CLA's ability to develop talent and future leaders is as good as you will see in the industry today.

Koltin continues, “MWA is the kind of firm that many regional and national firms wanted on their team, but CLA's strategy, culture, and service offerings made for the perfect alignment. Mike White is a one of a kind leader — he is young, entrepreneurial, and has an amazing skill that allows him to relate to people and clients and make a difference in their lives. His talented team will make CLA's Dallas-Fort Worth region an even bigger powerhouse than they are presently.”

Clients want to be confident that when they need help — personally or professionally, today or in the future — CLA will bring relevant expertise. To answer that need, CLA builds its diverse team to deliver an ever-broadening spectrum of wealth advisory, outsourcing, audit, tax, and consulting capabilities.

The 40+ former MWA team members will continue to serve clients locally and
