Paychex Flex Payroll Enhancements: When serving 670,000 customers, making payroll entry easy, flexible, and able to meet a wide variety needs is essential. With a newly enhanced grid entry view, Paychex Flex is the only solution on the market to offer multiple pay entry options to choose from within a single platform. Built primarily to meet the needs of power users, but available to all payroll customers, the grid view enables users to input complex payroll information quickly and efficiently using an interface designed specifically for speed.

The grid view offers more flexibility, customization, and visibility into employee pay data both individually and as groups, saving valuable time and allowing the user to work how they'd prefer. For example, users can leverage list and individual views to get a detailed gross-to-net look at individual employees or easily switch to grid view when more complex data entry, such as multiple overrides, is required. Each view works seamlessly with customizable input templates, import feature, and API capabilities. Paychex Flex payroll is mobile-enabled and integrates directly with a variety of time and attendance solutions, including cloud-based Paychex Flex Time and other hardware the company offers.

“Our organization’s payroll can be quite complex with many different employee types, including partners, non-equity partners, and hourly and salaried workers,” said Christie Kelley, budget and finance coordinator for Murphy Hesse Toomey and Lehane, LLP, a Massachusetts-based law practice. “The payroll grid allows me to build custom layouts that personalizes my pay entry experience and filters that provide an additional level of granularity for viewing only who I need to see when paying a specific set of employees. This allows me to be much more efficient while processing payroll and saves valuable time that I can then spend on other strategic efforts.”
