AbacusNext, a technology provider for the legal and accounting professions, today announces the company has received recognition by K2 Enterprises in its 18th Annual K2 Quality Awards. The company's practice management solution, OfficeTools Workspace, received the award for the category of Small CPA Firm Solution.

The K2 Annual Quality Awards are in their 18th year and among the most well-respected and longest-standing awards in the accounting industry.

OfficeTools by AbacusNext combines a suite of core productivity and management features that are the heart of thousands of firms today, including the centralization of client data, tracking due dates, staffing, workflow management, automated billing and time tracking.

"We designed OfficeTools to help firms in the tax preparation and public accounting profession to organize and automate practice management, and we work continuously to advance the platform," states Chris Cardinal, executive vice president, software engineering at AbacusNext. "We are honored to receive this recognition as it further validates our efforts to make OfficeTools the best technology available to accountants."

The K2 Annual Quality Awards are determined by a voting poll of the K2 Enterprises instructor team. The polling members of this team are Randy Johnston, Val Steed, Brian Tankersley, Tommy Stephens, Lawrence (Mac) McClelland, Ward Blatch, Steven Phelan and Steven Yoss.
