Among the Illinois CPA Society's diversity initiatives is the Mary T. Washington Wylie Internship Preparation Program. This award-winning, annual program prepares students from diverse backgrounds with key skills needed to obtain and succeed in accounting internships. Participants receive resume advice, interview coaching, opportunities for onsite interviews, and a $500 scholarship.

Earlier this month, the Society hosted the newest class of 26 program scholars who participated during their winter breaks from classes. Since its inception, 201 students completed the program and more than 85 percent have accepted internships or full-time positions as a result.

Mary T. Washington Wylie, a Chicagoan who graduated from Northwestern University, began her own accounting practice in a basement on the city's South Side in 1939. She became the first African-American female CPA in the U.S. in 1943 and was a trailblazer for minorities entering the accounting profession. This program bearing her name advances diversity within the profession by building skills and presenting new opportunities for minority accounting students to be successful.
