the unlimited timers that are available. Users can record both billable and non-billable time, with tabs available for both. After-the-fact time entry is usually used in a firm where an employee enters time for multiple staff members, whereas the timer option can be used to record time as a task is being completed. Users can easily pause a timer and delete any recorded timers if desired. All time recorded by the timers will be added to the timer sheet, with users able to generate a bill based on timer entries.
