Career Highlights: I began my career working for big corporations in manufacturing, financial services, and healthcare. My curiosity about middle markets led me to into private equity and M&A where I rebuilt accounting departments after reorganizations and acquisitions. While these weren't the sexiest jobs, the learnings that I gained from leading a 3-year financial restatement, reducing close cycle time by 70%, and automating a manual procure-to-pay process teaching accounting, my goal was to give candidates the non-technical exam essentials that they won't find in traditional CPA exam review programs from the perspective of someone who's been where they are. My CPA Exam Virtual Classroom, something I built with my own hands and ideas, had a 100% pass rate in the first quarter that it launched!

Of equal importance is leading and creating space for my employees to develop into the professional rockstars that they aspire to be. Throughout my career, I've learned the difference between a being leader and being a boss. I lead through engaging and empowering employees to do their jobs; educating them on both the technical and unwritten career rules; and most importantly, understanding that they are people first, employees second, and leading with empathy – even through ambiguous times.
