Corvee, a software and solutions company serving tax and accounting firms, today announces the company is offering a webinar on "How Firms Can Benefit from the Latest Tax Policy Changes Coming in 2021." The webinar is geared to help tax and accounting professionals advise clients on changes coming due to President Biden's proposed tax policies and procedures.

The webinar is scheduled to take place on April 21 at noon EST and will feature Andrew Argue, co-founder and CEO of Corvee, and Amanda Argue, co-founder and chief of staff of Corvee. The presentation will include the following:

- A description of Biden's current tax plan and a comparison of that plan and today's tax law.
- What is expected to happen with taxes in the remainder of 2021 and how tax professionals can help clients make decisions to affect their tax position.
- How to take both current law and Biden's plan and build proactive, multi-entity, multi-year tax plans for clients using tax planning software.

"This webinar will provide clarity on the new tax policies coming down the pipeline so tax professionals can prepare clients for the tax hikes that appear to be imminent," states Andrew Argue. "This is a great way for tax professionals to help clients plan for the future and be seen as a trusted advisor while providing value-added services."
