

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

During a hearing held by the Senate Finance Committee on Spotlighting IRS Customer Service Challenges, Tax Executive Committee (TEC) Chair for the American Institute of CPAs (AICPA) and practicing CPA, Jan Lewis, opened her testimony by letting the Senators know, “...I’m here today because there’s still time to salvage this filing season, or at least make a difference.” She shared specific challenges her clients are facing in navigating through the IRS service issues and remarked, “...at times, we as CPAs feel powerless.”

Also testifying before the Senate Finance Committee was National Taxpayer Advocate Erin Collins, who’s concern and several proposed solutions mirror those that the AICPA and the Tax Professionals United for Taxpayer Relief Coalition have submitted.

Senators from both sides of the aisle expressed their commitment to improving

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us measures of relief, as we are already in the throes of filing season. Time is of the essence,” she said.

Lewis outlined the recommendations the AICPA believes the IRS can implement now, on its own:

- Temporarily postpone automated compliance actions;
- Adjust account hold times;
- Liberalize the reasonable cause penalty waiver process; and
- Provide taxpayers with targeted relief from both the underpayment of estimated tax and the late payment penalties.

The hearing highlighted a willingness and desire by members of Congress to support these recommendations and urge the IRS to comply. The steps already taken by the IRS to mitigate anticipated challenges is a start, but more must be done to provide significant and meaningful relief to all.

CPA Practice Advisor is registered with the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy (NASBA) as a sponsor of continuing professional education on the National Registry of CPE Sponsors.

© 2024 Firmworks, LLC. All rights reserved