ADP, a global technology company providing human capital management (HCM) solutions, launched powerful new platform capabilities to its leading WorkMarket freelance management system (FMS). The new functionality empowers businesses to quickly onboard their workers and see value from their contingent workforce in today's increasingly competitive labor environment.

The new feature, called Recruiting Campaigns 2.0, greatly enhances WorkMarket's Labor Clouds curated talent functionality. It drives speed and efficiency with an end-to-end solution that gives businesses greater insights into the onboarding process for freelancers. The update features templates, checklists, custom landing pages and dashboards, giving organizations peace of mind that business, tax and banking requirements are being met in a timely manner.

“The release of Recruiting Campaigns 2.0 comes at an important time as businesses reevaluate how they manage their workforce amid a surge in on-demand labor,” said as well as automated onboarding reminders for a more seamless flow of communication to workers.

WorkMarket helps businesses curate a network of pre-screened freelance workers in one platform based on business requirements around skills, experience and geography. Labor Clouds also empowers enterprises to mitigate the risk surrounding misclassification and labor laws so you can find the right worker in the right place at the right time.
