

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

Advisor "40 Under 40" honoree is a couple weeks away from taking over the reins of MACPA, one of the largest and most active state associations in the accounting profession.

Jason Bramwell • Jun. 15, 2022

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

A 10-year veteran of the Maryland Association of CPAs and a two-time CPA Practice Advisor “40 Under 40” honoree is a couple weeks away from taking over the reins of MACPA, one of the largest and most active state associations in the accounting profession.

Rebekah Brown, CPA, most recently MACPA’s director of development, will succeed longtime association employee—and Rebekah’s mom—Jackie Brown as president and CEO when Jackie retires on June 30.

After working as a senior auditor for three years at Sparks, Md.-based management consulting, tax, and audit firm SC&H Group, Rebekah joined the MACPA staff in 2012, and in 2014 was named the association’s manager of membership development and engagement. Rebekah was promoted to director of development in 2018, and she is

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

CPA Practice Advisor: Where does being named MACPA president and CEO rank among your career achievements?

Rebekah Brown: It is definitely near the top! But, as hopefully those who I have had the privilege to work alongside know, my greatest joy is in helping others achieve their career goals. So while this personal achievement is amazing, it ranks up there alongside watching students and young CPAs I have mentored achieve their goals.

CPA PA: Is there any more significance to you personally because you are succeeding your mom as MACPA president and CEO?

Brown: I would not be a CPA if it wasn't for my mom. Being exposed to this great profession from a young age encouraged me to seek it out in college as a rewarding career path. And although not a CPA herself, watching her develop a passion for this profession, and especially its people over her 42-year career at MACPA, developed a passion in me.

As I have said to many over the last several days, I am embarrassingly blessed by the CPA community of leaders and mentors who have invested in me. I am a proud product of all those people and look forward to continuing to invest in others in the same way.

CPA PA: Have you set any short-term and/or long-term goals for MACPA during your tenure as president and CEO?

Brown: The last two years have been turbulent for the entire world, and it has been a unique time of "scarciting" (scary and exciting) transition at MACPA. Our team looks

Hello. It looks like you're using an ad blocker that may prevent our website from working properly. To receive the best experience possible, please make sure any blockers are switched off and refresh the page.

If you have any questions or need help you can email us

CPA Practice Advisor is registered with the National Association of State Boards of Accountancy (NASBA) as a sponsor of continuing professional education on the National Registry of CPE Sponsors.

© 2024 Firmworks, LLC. All rights reserved