Great Place to Work then measured the differences in survey responses across demographic groups and roles within each organization to assess both the quality and consistency of the employee experience. Statements are weighted according to their relevance in describing the most important aspects of an equitable workplace.

Survey data analysis and company-provided datapoints are then factored into a combined score to compare and rank the companies that create the most consistently positive experience for all employees in this industry, with companies appearing on Fortune's 100 Best Companies to Work For ranking at the top of the list.

Of the 25 companies ranked in the the large category, Deloitte was the highest-ranked accounting firm at No. 6, with 92% of employees saying Deloitte is a great place to work. Here is where all nine large firms placed with the employee satisfaction percentage in parenthesis:

- 6. Deloitte (92%)
- 7. Plante Moran (96%)
- 10. RSM US (93%)
- 11. KPMG (90%)
- 14. EY (83%)
- 18. PwC (90%)
- 19. Crowe (91%)
- 22. Baker Tilly (94%)
- 23. Withum (92%)

A typical company has an average of 57% of employees who say it is a great place to work, according to Great Place to Work. Accenture was named the best large workplace in consulting and professional services.

Of the 50 companies ranked in the small and medium category, Tampa, FL-based
